THE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislative Assembly has been doing some good work of late, although the tendency to tedious debate is still apparent. However, members really manifest a growing disposition to bring the session to a close, and some even cherish the hope of finishing it by the end of the present month. It is possible to accomplish this by diligent application to business; but we by no means think it probable. Mr. Cecil Brown yesterday moved that there should be night sittings, but his motion was not adopted. Mr. Kaunamano having delivered a humorous speech against it, in which he illustrated the difficulties in the way of getting the House to settle down to business after dinner. It was resolved instead to assemble earlier each day and be more diligent in work. We note these points because they are of interest as showing the bent of the legislative mind on the one hundred and seventh day of the session. It is about time some change of method was adopted to save appearances.

In the Assembly on Monday a resolution was passed instructing that a select committee be appointed to report upon the measures to be adopted for a becoming celebration of His Majesty's fiftieth birthday. The resolution was moved by Mr. Aholo, and supported by His Excellency Mr. Gibson, who thought that the committee should likewise make a recommendation as to expenditure. This is a proper course to take. The occasion is an interesting one, the King's life being coincident with nearly all the great progressive movements in the country, and his own name, as ruler and promoter, is inseparably associated with the more important of these. It is not for us to anticipate the action of the Committee when appointed, but we trust its report will not be put off until too late for consideration and review by the Legislature. The fiftieth, or jubilee birthday of His Majesty the King, should be made the occasion for a national demonstration of loyalty and affection heretofore. The Legislature will be called upon to vote the money for this object, and there should be no niggardly spirit evinced when an appropriation is asked for that purpose.

The length of the session, and the expense incurred for engrossing, translating and printing bills, reports and public documents, imposed the necessity of providing more money for the expense of the Legislature, and a joint resolution appropriating $15,000 for that purpose was considered and passed on Monday, and reported back approved yesterday. This was prompt work, and shows what may be accomplished when the Legislature really means business.

A bill to amend the law relating to private ways and water rights, introduced by Mr. Castle, was the subject of animated debate on both days. It is needless to follow this debate, which disclosed not a little error and a great deal of prejudice. It is sufficient to say that the bill passed, with several amendments. If the complaints of the members of the Bar having seats in the House are based upon facts—and we believe they are—then it was high time that the law should be amended. It is to be hoped the bill in question will cure these defects.

The Electric Light bill came up for discussion yesterday, and after considerable debate, and a statement of policy by the Minister of the Interior, it was laid upon the table. This was the best thing to do with it. The bill in possession of the House was the committee's substitute, and not the original measure introduced early in the session. The subject, no doubt, is a difficult one, and it should be left to the Government either to carry the project out themselves or enter into a contract to have the work done. But when much older and richer communities than Honolulu have abandoned electric light after trial, this city may very well be excused for exercising a prudent discretion in its adoption.

The Appropriation bill came up for consideration in committee yesterday, when it was passed to engrossment, and is to be read a third time next Monday. The Finance Committee reported that the total amount of appropriations up to yesterday was $3,822,976 36. This is a large sum of money, but it did not cover all the permanent settlements embodied in bills that have been passed by the Legislature. There are other additions to be made to the bill. This will probably delay the final passing of the Appropriation bill for a day or two.

Complimentary Dinner.

The Barkentine Planter.

The new American barkentine Planter, which arrived at this port last Thursday on her maiden trip, is a vessel of 498 tons register, and is owned by J. Kentfield & Co., of San Francisco. She was built for the Hawaiian trade and will run regularly between here and the Coast.

The Planter was built at Port Ludlow by C. Murray of San Francisco, and her construction was superintended by W. R. Perriman, her present commander. The following are her dimensions: Length of keel, 157 feet; length over all, 168 feet; beam, 36½ feet; depth of hold, 13½ feet; length of rails, 125 feet. The vessel is built of the best California woods. Her cabin is commodious and airy, and contains four double berthed staterooms. The interior is fitted up in an elegant manner, and the floors are covered with costly rugs. The Captain's cabin is a model of neatness, the woodwork being of polished mahogany. Adjoining this is the pantry and then the chief officer's and stewards' rooms. They are large and well ventilated. The Planter is a perfect model and quite an addition to the fleet of sailing vessels which regularly visit these Islands. Captain Perriman speaks highly of her sailing qualities, the helm being answered with ease and rapidity. As soon as the vessel is unloaded, Capt. Perriman will throw her open for inspection.

Roman Catholic Fancy Fair.

An interesting gathering took place yesterday afternoon at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Fort street, on the occasion of the holding of a fancy fair, which had been got up by the Sisters for charitable purposes. The latter, with true christian charity, decided to devote the proceeds not only within the limits of their own denomination, but beyond it. The various articles offered for sale were contributed by the industry of the girls attending the Convent school, assisted by lady friends, and met with a ready sale, the stalls being nearly cleared by 4 p. m. There was a large attendance, including the boarders of St. Louis College. Refreshments of a superior quality were provided, and the affair was brought to a close during the evening.
